

Excursion: Dallas, The 6th Floor Museum at Dealey Plaza and the Arlington National Medal of Honor Museum

The Dallas 6th Floor Museum: The Museum, located within the former Texas School Book Depository building, chronicles the assassination and legacy of President John F. Kennedy, who was assassinated there on November 22, 1963. The Texas School Book Depository building was the epicenter of world shock, grief, and outrage, and now houses the history and controversy of the time. The Museum chronicles the assassination and legacy of President Kennedy and explores the history of the 1960s through the collections, special events, and educational programs. The Museum's collections include more than 90,000 items related to the assassination of President Kennedy and its local and global aftermath, the legacy of the Kennedy presidency, and the turbulent culture of the 1960s.

Lunch is available at the National Medal of Honor Museum.

Arlington National Medal of Honor Museum: Opened in 2025, the museum is dedicated to the legacy of our nation's highest military decoration, the Medal of Honor. Guided by the Medal's core values: Courage, Sacrifice, Commitment, Integrity, Citizenship, and Patriotism, this museum was built to recognize the valor as well as the quiet lives many recipients lead before and after their service. You will hear these stories, often in their own voices.

Over 40 million men and women have served in the US Military since the Civil War. Fewer than four thousand people have been awarded the Medal of Honor. Each is recognized here in the exhibits and events that inspire every visitor to understand the people who have received this high honor during their service in our military.
